Bullying Affects Everyone:

Those who are bullied
Those who bully
Bystanders

Short and Long term Effects of Being Bullied

Lower self-esteem

Illness

Absenteeism

Depression & anxiety

Thoughts of suicide

Empowering the Bystander

Bystanders are important because:

Bullying most often takes place in front of peers.

It almost never happens when adults are watching.

Most bystanders want to do something to stop the bully.

Bullies like an audience. If the audience shows disapproval, bullies are discouraged from continuing.

However, bystanders, especially children, need to be empowered to act. The majority of children won't act for a variety of reasons, perhaps because they are afraid, confused or unsure of what to do.

Bystanders may experience...

Be afraid to associate with the victim for fear of either lowering their own status or of retribution from the bully and becoming victims themselves

Fear reporting bullying incidents because they do not want to be called a "snitch," a "tattler," or "informer"

Experience feelings of guilt and helplessness for not standing up to the bully on behalf of their classmate

Be drawn into bullying behavior by group pressure

Feel unsafe, unable to take action, or a loss of control

Bystanders

In addition to the terrible problems that bullying creates for those who are directly involved, student bystanders to bullying also experience feelings of fear, discomfort, guilt, and helplessness.

Empowering bystanders to take action might be the key to stopping bullies.

If you see something say something!

What can we do?

If your child bullies others...

Communicate directly to the child that you know they have been involved in a bullying act, that bullying is a serious issue, and that you will not tolerate any future bullying behavior.

Enforce family rules

Reinforce positive and kind behavior

Spend more time with your child

Monitor your child's activities

Build upon your child's talents

Help your child find more appropriate behavior patterns

Seek professional assistance if necessary

What can we do?

Understand the extent, seriousness and dynamics of bullying

Recognize and respond early and effectively to behaviors that can lead to bullying

Learn about new, effective strategies for controlling bullying

Prepare children to recognize and respond effectively to early bullying behavior

Teach children how everyone-bullies, victims, bystanders, and supportive adults-can help control bullying

Create an environment where everyone understands that bullying behaviors are unacceptable, harmful and preventable

Empower yourself and children to actively intervene to prevent and stop bullying

Teach responsible citizenship

Creating a Culture of Respect for One Another

How fortunate we are!

Rockville Centre and South Hempstead are wonderful places to raise and educate children...

We share the responsibility for maintaining a positive school and community environment
